Friday, November 22. 1706.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated Nov. 23.

Liege, November 16.

THE Earl of Albemarle, who is to command in this Place during the Winter, arriv'd here yesterday with some Troops; and the rest of our Garrison came in this Morning; the whole consists of 8 Battallions and 11 Squadrons; but 'tis talk'd a Detachment of the Horse will be sent to Huy. The King of Prussia's Troops which serv'd in Flanders the last Campaign, have pass'd the Maese, and seperated themselves to go into the Winter Quarters assign'd them between that River and the Rhine.

Brussels, Nov. 17. M. d'Auverquerque the Field-Marshal causes an exact Discipline to be observ'd among the Dutch Troops that are lately come to Garrison in this City; and for the better preventing all Disorders his Excellency has establish'd Corps de Garde in the most frequented Streets. The Duke of Vendome is at Mons with the Elector of Bavaria: The latter has made a Promotion of Officers among the Spanish Troops, viz. 5 Lieutenants General, as many Majors General, and several Brigadiers. The Lieutenants General are the Prince of Spinola, the Count of Grobendonk, the Baron de Capres, the Count de Toulangeon, and M. de Valle; and among the Majors General are Don Pedro de Zuniga, and M. d'Avelada. The Enemy fortify St. Gilain, and have given the Government of it to M. de Sotello.

Maestricht, Nov. 17. The 7 Battallions and 9 Squadrons that were expected to come here into Garrison after the Army had separated, arriv'd the 15th Instant. A Party of the Garrison of Huy went up the River to Namur the Night between the 10th and 11th of this Month; the Officer that commanded them, immediately sent several Grenadiers in a Boat, with Order for one of them to scale the Wall of that Town towards the Maese, and set fire to a Magazine of Hay which the Enemy had made, while the rest should support him and guard the Boat: He executed that Order with so much Success, that the said Magazine burnt 3 Days successively, and the Flames were seen at 5

Leagues distance. The Grenadier that had set Fire to the Magazine, presently got into the Boat, repass'd the Maese with his Comrades, and all return'd safe to Huy.

Amsterdam, Nov. 23. 'The following Letter was written to the States by Mr. Stanhope, late Envoy Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of Her Britannick Majesty to the States, on Occasion of his Departure from the Hague for England.

High and Mighty Lords!

IT has pleas'd God to afflict me with Sicknes, and to render me unable to continue any longer to serve Her Majesty at the Court of your High Mightinesses, I must go for England, if I am in a Condition, by the first Convoy that presents, with the Approbation of the Duke of Marlborough, and being unable to wait upon your High Mightinesses to take an Audience of Leave, I take the Liberty to do it by this Letter, hoping it will not be displeasing to you.

I return you most humble Thanks for all the Kindnesses which you have been pleas'd to shew towards me during my Residence here, I shall preserve a grateful Remembrance of them the remaining Part of my Life, and shall let slip no Occasion of shewing the most humble Veneration which I have for your Illustrious Body, and for each particular Member of which it is compos'd.

I pray God long to preserve you, and to continue his Blessings on the flourishing State committed to your Care, and which you govern with so much Wisdom.

I desire you to pardon me if there has been any Defect in my Conduct during my Ministry at the Court of your High Mightinesses; I can assure you my Heart had no Part in it; I am thoroughly possess'd with a sincere Respect and Inclination for your State; and have endeavour'd as far as lay in my Power, to improve the good and strict Union which, by the Blessing of Heaven, subsists between the 2 Nations, and which is so necessary for their common Preservation; I carry away these Sentiments with me, and will instill them into those that belong to me; &c. I am with most profound Respect, &c.

At the Hague,

Sign'd,

Sept. 27. 1706.

Alexander Stanhope.
London,

London, November 22.

An Express arriv'd Yesterday from Scotland with an Account that on Friday the 15th Instant the Parliament met and went upon the 2d Article of the Union; after the reading of which the Marquis of Anandale moved to settle the Succession of Hanover without an Union; to which was answered, that the Parliament had been called upon the Affair of the Union and ought to proceed, the which being carried, and the Question put, Approve or Not the 2d Article, it was carried Approve by a Majority of 54.

Yesterday the Parliament met, and was further prorog'd to the 3d of December ensuing.
